Dear Hiring Manager,

I still remember being in Cambodia with my camera in my hands, listening to stories that were difficult to hear and impossible to forget. I was documenting people affected by human trafficking, and in those moments photography became much more than taking beautiful images. It became a way to honor people, to protect truth, and to help others feel something real. That experience changed me. It showed me that a photograph can carry emotion, dignity, pain, hope, and purpose all at once.

Photography is not just my career path; it is part of who I am. I find happiness through creating images, studying light, noticing details, and turning ordinary moments into something meaningful. Whether I am photographing a person, a product, food, a luxury item, or a brand story, I care deeply about making the image feel intentional, polished, and alive.

With 6+ years of hands-on experience creating commercial visuals, portraits, food and beverage content, reels, and campaign assets, I understand how to plan shoots, manage client expectations, retouch images, and adapt creative direction to a brand's audience. I bring both technical skill and emotional commitment to my work.

My goal is to keep improving every day and become one of the best photographers in the world, not only for recognition, but because I want my work to make a difference. I would be honored to bring that passion, discipline, and creative eye to your brand, and I would love the opportunity to interview and share more about my story.

Sincerely,
David George
